| Hebrew | The Hebrew את word does not have a corresponding word in English. In Hebrew, it is a marker of the accusative, i.e. the word following it is the object of the sentence. For example, in Genesis 1:1 the word is preceded by בְּרָא אֱלֹהִים ( זָרַעַד כְּחֹל הָיָם אֲשֶׁר לֹא יִסְפָּר מֵרֹב |
| ESV    | So he stayed there that night, and from what he had with him he took a present for his brother Esau,                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| NIV    | He spent the night there, and from what he had with him he selected a gift for his brother Esau:                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| NLT    | Jacob stayed where he was for the night. Then he selected these gifts from his possessions to present to his brother, Esau:                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
