|        | The Hebrew את word does not have a corresponding word in English. In Hebrew, it is a marker of the accusative, i.e. the word following it is the object of the sentence. It only ever occurs in conjunction with nouns associated with the definite article ה. Genesis 1:1 הַשָּׁמַיִם וְהָאָרֶץ כִּי מַעֲלָה גֵרָה הָיָה וּפְרָסָה לֹא יִפְרִיס טֶמְאָה הוּא לָכֵם |
|        | ESV And the rock badger, because it chews the cud but does not part the hoof, is unclean to you.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|        | NIV The coney, though it chews the cud, does not have a split hoof; it is unclean for you.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| NLT    | The hyrax chews the cud but does not have split hooves, so it is unclean.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
