| Hebrew | hebrew The Hebrew אֶת word does not have a corresponding word in English. In Hebrew, it is a marker of the accusative, i.e. the word following it is the object of the sentence. It only ever occurs in conjunction with nouns associated with the definite article הַ.Genesis 1:1 בַּיּוֹמִים הָהֵם תַּעֲבֹדוּ יְבָאִחִיכֶם בְּנֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל אִישׁ בְּאִחֵיו לֹא תִרְדֶּה בּוֹ בַּעֲרֹךְ |
| ESV    | You may bequeath them to your sons after you to inherit as a possession forever. You may make slaves of them, but over your brothers the people of Israel you shall not rule, one over another ruthlessly.                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| NIV    | You can will them to your children as inherited property and can make them slaves for life, but you must not rule over your fellow Israelites ruthlessly.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| NLT    | passing them on to your children as a permanent inheritance. You may treat them as slaves, but you must never treat your fellow Israelites this way.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
