| Hebrew | צִדְקַת תְּמִים תִּישָׁר דְּרָכּוֹ וּבִרְשָׁעָתוֹ יִפֹּל רָשָׁע                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| ESV    | The righteousness of the blameless keeps his way straight, but the wicked falls by his own wickedness.                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| NIV    | The righteousness of the blameless makes a straight way for them, but the wicked are brought down by their own wickedness.                                                                                                                                                                   |
| NLT    | The godly are directed by honesty; the wicked fall beneath their load of sin.                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| LXX    | δικαιοσύνη ἀμώμους ὀρθοτομεῖ ὁδοὺς ἀσέβεια δὲ greek δέ is a conjunction that can mean “but” or “and” or “also” or “moreover”. It is a word that is used very frequently in the New Testament, and is often unexpressed and not translated in English. περιπίπτει ἀδικία |
| KJV    | The righteousness of the perfect shall direct his way: but the wicked shall fall by his own wickedness.                                                                                                                                                                                      |
